

Fábio Salgado

Public Affairs Consultant at ATREVIA

public affairs, culture and software

I was born in Nazaré, and it was there that I entered politics, at 19, as number two on a list for the municipal assembly. Today I split my time between Alfama, in Lisbon, and Ribeira Branca, in Torres Novas.

Since then: a shop of my own, the counter and the stage of a small venue, four years in a Lisbon City Hall office, and today public affairs consulting.

Somewhere in there I started building software, and more recently producing fado — without letting go of anything.

This is the archive of that work. I keep it myself, and every entry says what it is, when it was, and what I did there.

I build together with Claude, among other tools — this included. Everything is listed below.

CAREER

Public Affairs Consultant

2022 - ongoing

ATREVIA

I follow the Portuguese legislative and regulatory process and design the response: whom to talk to, when, and with what.

From advice to delivery, for clients across sectors — regulation, institutional relations, communication with decision-makers.

I map who decides and who influences, working with teams across disciplines.

Political Adviser

2018–2022

Câmara Municipal de Lisboa

Adviser to the councillor for Culture, Housing, Human Rights and Social Rights.

Legislative analysis, reports, motions and proposals — from framing to final wording.

Alongside that, the office's communications and social media, and producing the events those areas ran.

Barman

2015–2017

Bartô

At Bartô, the bar and small venue inside Chapitô, in Lisbon. Behind the counter, and stage-hand work in the room itself. Culture seen from the side that sets up and tears down.

Owner

2010–2014

Lisbon Souvenir

The first business of my own, in Lisbon: buying, selling, the books and the counter.

A Cultura no melhor lugar. Portugal's cultural agenda in one place: over 1,500 events on show, across 77 venues in 33 municipalities — every district and autonomous region.

I made it because I love theatre and could never find out what was on: the national listings used to live scattered across each company's and each venue's own site.

Filter by day, by free admission and by accessibility. Follow artists and venues. Weekly newsletter.

Born in 2016 as EmCena.pt, a Lisbon theatre listing. Renamed and relaunched in 2026, now nationwide.

A pipeline of my own collects and normalises the listings, venue by venue; the final pass is mine.

I founded it, I run it, I built it.

Fado: curation, production and programming.

Named after Maria Severa Onofriana. Four formats: Severa, Mariquinhas, Guitarradas and Vimioso.

We represent artists and put on the concerts. Record releases, now and then.

Artistic curation is by Marta Rosa, my partner. We founded it together.

I produce it, and the site is mine too.

A golfer's path, season by season: WAGR and European rankings, partnerships, press and WITB.

Francisca is my niece.

The rankings keep themselves up to date: by API where there is one, by scraping the page where there is not.

I designed it and built it.

The site of a fado singer who writes what she sings: calendar, discography, press kit and booking.

Voice, fado viola, and her own lyrics.

Marta is my partner, and she's who I produce fado with.

I designed it and built it; the songs are hers.

A house run like a company: calendar and tasks, contacts and contracts, wallet and cash flow, credit, utilities, taxes, shopping and transport.

I made it as an answer to a problem of autonomy: putting building work, equipment upkeep, animal appointments — vaccines and the like — and home automation in one place, and on the phone. Each module works like an app; they are all connected.

Construction module: chapters by phase, budget versus paid, expense log and per-room sheets.

Built-in CRM for running a micro-business, with a proposal and quote generator.

It reaches outside through APIs: weather, transport, radio, wildfire risk, heat alerts, automations and home control.

Private application, behind authentication — no public link. The screenshots show demo data.

I designed it and built it, module by module.

Selling fado experiences in Lisbon: six houses, chosen by someone who lives in Alfama.

Booking goes through the experience platforms that sell the city.

I chose the houses, designed the site and built it.

Multi-tenant point of sale for events and fundraising: order slips, tables, consumption cards and kitchen tickets.

It came out of a real need: a community organisation had to keep its own billing under control. It is in use, and it is available to others.

Private application, behind authentication — no public link.

I designed it and built it. I have stood on the other side of this counter.
