Fábio Salgado

Public affairs consultant at ATREVIA

public affairs, culture and software

I was born in Nazaré, and it was there that I entered politics, at 19, as number two on a list for the municipal assembly. Today I split my time between Alfama, in Lisbon, and Ribeira Branca, in Torres Novas.

Since then: a shop of my own, the counter and the stage of a small venue, four years in a Lisbon City Hall office, and today public affairs consulting. Somewhere in there I started building software, and more recently producing fado — without letting go of anything.

This is the archive of that work. I keep it myself, and every entry says what it is, when it was, and what I did there.

I build together with Claude, among other tools — this included. Everything is listed below.

Public affairs consultant

ATREVIA

I follow the Portuguese legislative and regulatory process and design the response: whom to talk to, when, and with what.

From advice to delivery, for clients across sectors — regulation, institutional relations, communication with decision-makers.

I map who decides and who influences, working with teams across disciplines.

Adviser
2018–2022

Câmara Municipal de Lisboa

Adviser to the councillor for Culture, Housing, Human Rights and Social Rights.

Legislative analysis, reports, motions and proposals — from framing to final wording.

Alongside that, the office's communications and social media, and producing the events those areas ran.

Barman
2015–2017

Bartô

At Bartô, the bar and small venue inside Chapitô, in Lisbon. Behind the counter, and stage-hand work in the room itself. Culture seen from the side that sets up and tears down.

Owner
2010–2014

Lisbon Souvenir

The first business of my own, in Lisbon: buying, selling, the books and the counter.

PROJECTS

coreto.org

2016 – ongoing

founder and maker · product

Toda a programação cultural do seu território, numa agenda só. Once a day it gathers what councils, theatres, libraries and local associations already publish, and gives it back as an agenda with the address, colour and logo of whoever runs it: a page, a map, a calendar, a feed and an embeddable widget.

I made it because I love theatre and could never find out what was on: the national listings used to live scattered across each company's and each venue's own site.

Born in 2016 as EmCena.pt, a listings site for Lisbon theatre; in 2026 it became Primeira Plateia, nationwide. Coreto inherited its engine and its address.

Fado: curation, production and programming, and a label for short, numbered editions.

Named after Maria Severa Onofriana. Four formats: Severa, Mariquinhas, Guitarradas and Vimioso.

The first release is Marta Rosa's CD "entretanto": ONOF 001, November 2026.

Artistic curation is by Marta Rosa, my partner.

Walking routes through the Lisbon of the resistance to the dictatorship, of 25 April and of the women who fought for freedom: places, people and dates, every fact with its source.

Women are at the centre of the story: at least half of the people are women, and a test guarantees it, not an intention.

In four languages, and it works offline.

A house run like a company — the building work, the calendar, contacts and contracts, the wallet, credit and taxes — and, in the same app, the Onofriana back office: events, proposals, artists and the label.

I made it as an answer to a problem of autonomy: putting building work, equipment upkeep, animal appointments — vaccines and the like — and home automation in one place, and on the phone.

Fado in Lisbon, chosen by someone who lives in Alfama: the experiences I recommend, table booking at a house in the neighbourhood, a PDF guide and articles.

Multi-tenant point of sale for events and fundraising: order slips, tables, consumption cards and kitchen tickets.

It came out of a real need: a community organisation had to keep its own billing under control. It is in use, and it is available to others.

A territory's transport in one place, whoever runs it: buses, trains, demand-responsive transport, shared bikes, coaches and taxis, with a journey planner, a page for every stop and every line, and a panel where the region's team publishes service alerts.

Licensed per region, to each transport authority; a new region comes in by declaration, without code. The demo regions, such as demo.paragem.pt, are invented from scratch.
